A

The need for academic excellence in colleges and universities across our land has been, is now, and will continue to be one of the greatest concerns of educators and others. Every student entering an institution of higher learning has the right to expect a high degree of competence among the faculty. No such institution is more academically sound than its faculty.

Because of the position which it maintains pertaining to the spiritual, and because of limited financial resources, Cedarville College finds it difficult to procure men and women with both the necessary spiritual and academic qualifications. This by no means indicates that Cedarville College makes apology for its faculty. This would be wholly unjustified. It does indicate, however, that the necessity for the academic upgrading of the faculty as a whole is a pressing need. Not only is it considered to be a need, but it is recognized as such. A great deal of effort is being made at the present time to alleviate this need.

Several Alumni have made inquiry of late as to the academic status of the faculty. This is a healthy sign. Without the spiritual Cedarville College would not be Christian, but without the academic it would cease to be a college. Many Alumni evidently recognize this fact and are interested in the academic climate.

In order that the Alumni be informed as to this important matter, an attempt has been made to obtain the academic pedigree of each member of the faculty, both present and immediately future. Members will be discussed according to division.
